Truett's Legacy

Chick-fil-A®, Inc. founder S. Truett Cathy lived out a number of principles that are important to embed into the culture of Chick-fil-A for future generations. As many witnessed, Truett lived his life with the enduring belief that a good name is to be treasured above great riches (Proverbs 22:1).

Below are six principles that have emerged as cornerstones of Truett's legacy.

He built a good name by...

- Being a good steward. He carefully and responsibly managed the resources that were entrusted to him.

- Building long-term relationships. He developed relationships that were built on loyalty, honesty, and trust.

- Providing hospitality. He created a culture of hospitality by genuinely serving others with a "My Pleasure" approach.

- Taking personal responsibility. He held himself accountable for results and excelled at execution by asking "Why not my best?"

- Choosing personal influence over position power. He used influence rather than his position power and lived by the golden rule of treating others the way you want to be treated.

- Having fun. He maintained a balance between work and fun: "If you love what you do, you'll never work another day in your life."

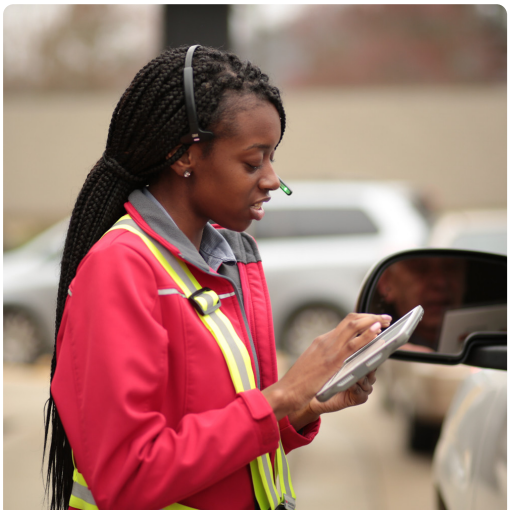
Operational Excellence Elements

Craveable Food: Craveable means that the food was so good Customers want to return to enjoy it again. Taste of food is the number one driver to Customer Satisfaction. Craveable food can be achieved when we adhere to food safety requirements and follow procedures for every product, every time.

Fast & Accurate Service: Fast service is the second most important value driver for Customers behind taste. However, Customers also say they feel cared for when Team Members slow down enough to confirm orders for accuracy. An important distinction is that being "quick" doesn't mean rushed. Efficient systems and processes will allow enough time to confirm orders and make personal connections, while also delivering food to Customers for a total experience that feels fast.

Welcoming Environment: Helps elevate the Customer experience by ensuring the Restaurant is a place of restoration - clean, safe, and truly welcoming to every Customer no matter how they choose to dine with us that day. As a Team Member, you contribute to the environment of the Restaurant by having a professional appearance and exuded hospitality.



2nd Mile Service Elements

Personal: When you engage with Customers on a personal level, you show them that you care about more than just the transaction. Showing interest in Customers helps establish Trust. Your personality and the ability to connect with others are the key to bringing this element to life.

Proactive: Anticipating Customer needs and checking in can mean a lot to Customers. Be creative and execute proactive behaviors in ways that make the most sense for their Customers.

Generous: Chick-fil-A's founder, S. Truett Cathy found joy in giving when he did not expect anything in return. To represent the brand of Chick-fil-A you are encouraged to embody Truett's generous spirit in the Restaurant.

Attentive & Friendly Team Members
